

Falling Waters Lodge

The Orvis Endorsed Falling Waters Lodge near Ellijay, Georgia is truly a feast for the senses. The massive log lodge reminds one of trips to the great lodges of the American West. Situated on 1800 acres of mountain splendor the property contains elevations up to 1700 feet for cool morning breezes even in summer. Over a mile of beautiful Clear Creek dances through a valley lined with massive oaks and hickory trees. The natural shading makes the fly fishing for fat colorful rainbow trout all that much more an open affair compared to most other mountain streams here in the Appalachians. Fishing here in this magnificent forest with cascading waterfalls feels like you're somewhere in the Pacific northwest or in a Harry Potter movie. The lodge sits beside placid 10 acre Lake Kennemur which is teeming with big Largemouth bass and hand sized Bluegill. Fall, winter, and spring fishing for big rainbows in the lake will test your tackle.

A morning trip on the lake and then an afternoon trip on Clear Creek is as close to a perfect day as you could possibly hope for.

Accommodations and food at the lodge are as amazing as the grounds it sits on. Giant timbers and stone were carefully laid in harmony with the natural surroundings. As one of our fishing customers said "this place looks like it grew here". For customers who are staying at the lodge, one of our professional guides will meet you at the door at a prearranged time and take you on the fishing excursion you have booked for that day and then return you back to the lodge for the evening. For the non fishing folks of the group there are a million things to do in nearby Ellijay, Blue Ridge, and Dahlonega. And guys, if you want to score some major points with the lovely lady in you life, take her here on a romantic weekend. To get your significant other interested in fly fishing an easy trip in the driftboat on Lake Kennemur catching some big Bluegill will get the juices flowing.
